PEOPLE AND PARTICULARS

Emma Stewart, born in 1899 in Palisades, died here recently. With sisters Kathleen and Marion, she lived in their Closter Rd. home until her death. The pleasant, witty woman -- a familiar sight walking her dog Specky -- loved Halloween, when the children came. When a child herself, she attended the old Palisades school (now the Community Center), sang in the church choir and helped in her father's general store (now the Ernest Quick residence.) She is buried in the family plot in the Palisades Cemetery beside her parents and brother.
